

“ We came here in 2004. We were looking for a slower pace of life. I started my consignment business, and it continued to grow. We found our current location to be perfect for us. It’s downtown, it’s warm and inviting. Many of our customers walk here with their kids. Kemptville is perfect for us. ”

Being downtown really suits my business

Shelley Mitchell was making the daily commute into Ottawa when the Kemptville consignment store To Be Continued came up for sale.

“We wanted to live in the country, and enjoy a different pace and quality of life,” recalls Mitchell. “When To Be Continued became available it just seemed like the perfect fit for our lifestyle.”

“I discovered this space on Sanders Street and I loved it. Bright, big and open, and I really feel it fits with my business.”

“I love downtown. I love being close to the waterfront, and walking across the bridge. I love being able to walk to the park. I like it that downtown businesses get together and plan events.”

“Anyone looking to locate a business downtown will find a variety of space, in a variety of configurations. No matter what your business is, you will find something that fits – rather than having to try to fit your business into someone else’s standard space.”

Invest in Downtown Kemptville

Downtown Kemptville has seen a significant revival over the last few years. The Municipality of North Grenville, along with business groups such as the BIA and the Chamber – along with private investors – have brought to life historic buildings and public spaces. Once again, Prescott and Clothier Streets – overlooking the picturesque South Branch of the Rideau – have become a destination. Unique shops abound, coupled with fine dining and live entertainment. The influx of new businesses has given fresh blood to the downtown core.

With plenty of free parking at Riverside Park and along our tree-lined streets, you’ll be able to park your car and enjoy a short stroll to our downtown hub.

Come explore what we have to offer. We think you’ll discover the perfect space for your new venture.
